My dear Harriet,

I enclose you a letter signed Katie [Weis? I presume from Mrs. Hopkins. At a glance I saw it was not for me; though the modern mode of directing letters has often deceived me. I know nothing of its contents.

Mr. Glossbrenner writes me that you had an interview with Judge B. at the Continental. He (the judge) told me that he had seen you at Philadelphia; but I took it for granted this was at Mr. Macalisters.

We had no news, "alls well." Blanche was over here today & brought me a shawl of yours. She said they all intended to visit me tomorrow evening.

Yours affectionately

James Buchanan
