Dear Sir,

I am about to take a liberty which I must trust to your goodness to excuse. A young relative of mine, Miss Isabella Bird, is on the point of paying a second visit to the United States, & is naturally anxious to carry with her an introduction to their President. I could not refuse her request & I trust that you will pardon her for making it & me for complying with it: and allow me to remain [?] with great respect, your obedient & faithful servant
