My dear James

Hey, I'm in the old man's Counting House. [My?] golly but it's hot today. I had to throw off my coat. I only come down to the Counting House in the morning. I never come near it in the afternoon. I was in Princeton about two weeks ago. It was very pleasant. I intend to go there again about the last of the month to the commencement. You better be there then. What are you doing with yourself. I am tired of staying here. I think I'll go to Cape May next month. How would you like to go back to old Bolly's again. I hate that mean man. I raised a Bolly moustache but I shaved it off again. My face is smooth again but I haven't much to tell you. So

Au revoir

Your affect. friend
