Dear Papa,

Im [sic] just going to drop you a line to let you know that just because I haven't acknowledged your letter and thanked you for the enclosed that it was no sign that it didn't come – but to tell the truth I've been pretty much under the weather, nothing serious just sort of grip that seemed to get a pretty good substantial grip with the result that I've been taking the rest cure for the past two weeks but I started in again today and hope to finish up the remaining four weeks without any more breaks in the routine, will have to dig pretty hard from now on to not only get ready for the exams but make up all the work I've lost, but its [sic] all part of the game.

I'll write again soon if I can snatch the time away but to tell the truth dont [sic] feel much like writing now so I'll have to get you to take the will for the deed for the rest of this.

Affectionately

Sid.

[Punctuation is Sid's]
